REMARKS

UNITED STATES PATENT (See also back of sheet) Juan Bautista de Anza selected the site for the mission in the spring of 1776 and the place he designated was never changed. It was on the bank of the little lake called by him "Laguna de Manantial" which is now filled in. The stream that flowed into it he called "Arroyo de los Dolores because it was on the Friday of Sorrows. In later years the name of the Mission was popularized to "Mission Dolores". Constructed of Mission started in 1776, and finished in 1884. [H]
